Windows Vista
Prepared by Arnel Roland T. Garing

Note: Check if the adapter channel is set to Six (6).

Procedures:

1. Open the Control Panel. Then open the Network and Sharing Center.

2. Inside Network and Sharing Center, click Manage Wireless Network at the left panel.
3. Manage Wireless Network box will appeared and click Adapter properties.

4. Then Wireless Network Connection Properties will appear. Then click Configure.
5. WLAN Properties will appear. Inside the Advance tab, choose Channel Number in property box. Then change the value to Six (6). Then Click Ok.
Note: Manually configuring WIFI in your notebook.

Procedures:

1. Inside Manage Wireless Network, Click the Add button.

2. How do you want to add a network? Choose ‘Manually create a network profile’.
3. New Window will appear asking to enter information for the Wireless Network.

4. For Network name: myWiFi; Security type: WEP; Security key: accessingwifi.

Note: Click the checkbox ‘Connect even if the network is not broadcasting’
5. Click Next. A dialog box will appear to inform for a successful configuration. Then click ‘Connect to…’ to verify your connection to myWiFi.

6. The notebook/laptop was successfully connected to myWiFi
Note: Checking for IP.

Procedure:

1. Inside Network and Sharing Center, click Manage network connection at the left panel.

2. Inside Network Connection, right click Wireless Network Connection. Click Status.
3. Wireless Network Connection Status will appear. Then click ‘Details…’

4. Network Connection Detail box show the IP address.
Note: Configure PROXY settings.

Procedure:

1. Inside Network and Sharing Center, click Internet Option at the left panel.

2. Internet Properties window will appear. Click Connection tab.
3. Inside Connection tab, click Lan settings.

4. At the Local Area Network settings, check ‘Use automatic configuration script’. In the address box type: http://wpad.dlsu.edu.ph. Then click Ok.